Global Health Opportunities for FSM Students

Information Session for Class of 2015

Friday, September 2, 12 - 1 PM, Lurie Medical Research Center, Hughes Auditorium

The Center for Global Health integrates global health education programming and faculty research initiatives within the Feinberg School of Medicine and encourages FSM students and McGaw residents to engage in global health in a meaningful way via research projects, supervised clinical work, and public health projects at both affiliated and unaffiliated universities, health clinics, and INGOs around the world.

FSM Funding Opportunities

Global Health Initiative: Funding is available to FSM medical students who wish to pursue a primary care rotation or related experience in resource-limited settings abroad working with underserved populations through the Global Health Initiative (GHI), established by Chicago Lake Shore Medical Associates (CLSMA).

Feinberg Travel Grant: The Feinberg Travel Grant complements the awards given out via the Global Health Initiative by creating funds for clinical rotations and global health education programs at affiliated FSM partner institutions in developed countries in Europe and Asia.

International Health Fellowship: The International Health Fellowship provides support to medical students who wish to conduct research projects at international sites. Stipends are awarded on a competitive basis to support student investigation of medical issues, public health systems and health policy, and/or health care delivery methods at an international site.

For more information: www.globalhealth.northwestern.edu

FSM Center for Global Health, 645 N. Michigan Ave, Suite 1058, 312-503-9000; Daniel Young, Associate Director, Global Health Education;
d-young@northwestern.edu